Hilti North America, Inc.

“Looking out our office windows, we continue to see signs of the ever-growing construction market in the Dallas metroplex, one of the top five construction markets in the United States. As a company focused on developing products, services and software for the construction industry, it was this very landscape of growth that attracted us to move our North America Corporate Headquarters to Plano in 2015. We selected Plano for several reasons, including the overall quality of life for our team members and the vibrant growth of the city. Our location at the Legacy Tower offered us a blank canvas to create a workplace of the future. The result is inspiring and encourages our diverse group of team members to work together like never before. We achieved our goal of creating an open, collaborative environment that puts smiles on the faces of our team members, and we couldn’t be happier with our new home.”
