"We built our new corporate headquarters in record time. From the day we broke ground to the time we brought people into the building was 10 months. The only way to make a fast-track project happen is with a great team, and that obviously included the City of Plano. Working with the City of Plano and its different departments was a great experience. They were very helpful throughout the process and allowed us to move as quickly as possible to get the facility open. On several occasions some of the City's development folks were actually in our meetings here on site to help us find solutions as quickly as possible."
